Praise for the We Find Feelings Clues series (I Know Happy, 9798885540582; I Know Mad, 9798885540551)

"When kids can name what they feel, they are better able to navigate their emotions. We Find Feelings Clues is a lovely series that helps kids become 'feelings detectives,' looking at clues to help them figure out what they are feeling and why. Each book offers multiple opportunities for kids and adults to pause and talk about their own feelings—making space for vital conversations that will help kids grow."—Deborah Farmer Kris, parent educator, author, and founder of Parenthood365

Praise for I Love Harriet Kippley (9798765922507)

"I Love Harriet Kippley encourages confidence and celebrates self-love. Praise for How to Train Your Amygdala (9798885543736)

"This creative, beautifully illustrated, engaging book is a delightful resource to help children and their grown-ups understand the mind-body connection. Absolutely love the Amygdala character, who shares the power of mindfulness strategies to help calm our minds and bodies when having big feelings."—Rosemarie T. Truglio, Ph.D., SVP, Curriculum & Content, Sesame Workshop

"The world would be a better place if every child and adult knew the word amygdala and even better—how to train it! This book does just that and is filled with powerful messages and illustrations that can help nurture children's emotional well-being in fun, gentle, and reassuring ways."—Jane Park, educational content expert, mom, and Senior Content Strategist at Google Kids & Families

Praise for Quiet Violet Finds Her Voice (9798765924839)

"Gabrielle Nidus's delightful story illustrates how baking combines math, chemistry, and community. As a professional baker I love watching all the elements in the kitchen come together through teamwork. And as a mom of three I adore how Violet's story teaches kids to use their voices and share them with intelligence and kindness."—Elisa Strauss, owner of Confetti Cakes and author of The Confetti Cakes Cookbook and Confetti Cakes for Kids
